#GirlsToo Teen Dating Violence Awareness Month

The #GirlsToo campaign is committed to creating a world where young people are safe, respected, and valued. This includes preventing teen dating violence, which is unfortunately experienced by 16% of girls in high school. This February we will be raising awareness about these issues as part of Teen Dating Violence Awareness Month, which is dedicated to preventing interpersonal violence among teens and educating both young people and adults about healthy relationships.

Sadly, most dating abuse is experienced for the first time by people under age 24, in some cases even as young as 11 years old. The lasting effects of dating violence include a variety of mental health problems including depression, anxiety, post-traumatic stress disorder and eating disorders.
